Well water testing available to Kingwood residents

Kingwood Township, NJ – What’s in your water? If your drinking water comes from a private well, you won’t know if it’s free from contaminants until it’s tested.

This fall, in an effort to protect community health, the Kingwood Township Environmental Commission will partner with nonprofit clean water advocate Raritan Headwaters to offer well water testing to citizens at below-market cost.

Residents can purchase water sample collection kits during Community Day on September 17th at the Environmental Commission’s table or at the Kingwood Municipal Building from September 19th to October 28th, Monday through Friday 9:00 a.m. to 3 p.m. Water samples must be dropped off at the Municipal Building on November 2nd between 7:30 and 9:30 a.m. Test results will be available about two weeks later.

“We’re pleased to partner with Kingwood, and we strongly encourage everyone with a private well to have their water tested,” said Cindy Ehrenciou, executive director of the Bedminster-based Raritan Headwaters. “It’s better to know what’s in your drinking water than not know. If a contaminant is detected, measures can be taken to remove it.”

Raritan Headwaters is the “watershed watchdog” for a 470-square-mile area in Hunterdon, Somerset and Morris counties, comprising the drainage area for the North and South Branches of the Raritan River. Eighty percent of the residents of this region – about 320,000 people – obtain their drinking water through wells.

Well water pollutants found in the region are coliform bacteria, nitrate, arsenic, lead, iron, radon and volatile organic compounds. Sources of contamination include failing septic systems; chemicals like fertilizers, herbicides and pesticides; and naturally-occurring contaminants.

Raritan Headwaters offers a “basic kit” for coliform bacteria and nitrate for $60. Residents can also test for other potential contaminants at an additional cost. Staff members at RHA are available to advise citizens who are uncertain about which tests to order.

Raritan Headwaters recently completed a 30-year analysis of well water tests in the region, which showed an increase in arsenic levels in several towns. Concentrations of nitrate also increased, and the percentage of wells that failed for coliform bacteria showed a slight increase.

Residents who aren’t able to take advantage of Kingwood’s community well test program can contact Mare Tippett, Raritan Headwaters’ well test manager, anytime throughout the year to arrange to pick up a test kit in Flemington. She can be contacted at 908-234-1852, ext. 401 or welltesting@raritanheadwaters.org.

For more information about Raritan Headwaters and its programs and preserves, go to www.raritanheadwaters.org.
